This paper describes a technique involving the use of a special needle that may be used with the mentally retarded in obtaining a blood sample. This technique was developed and adopted by the mentally retarded to assist them in obtaining blood samples. The samples were administered to the children to determine the serum level of Hb, the glucose level, and the protein content. Blood samples were taken from the finger pads or on the buttocks using a disposable hypodermic needle. Data were collected on the 50 children admitted to the study. Nurses and teachers were trained in the technique and were able to obtain a blood sample from 71% of the children. of the President and the Vice President, and all Federal nominees to the judiciary. The report is meant to ensure that the Senate has the opportunity to review the merits of a judicial nominee's qualifications and to vet that nominee on national security grounds. Nominations To be timely under the regulation, a nomination must be submitted to the President within 35 days of the beginning of a session of Congress. Generally, the submission of a nomination to the President is anticipated to occur in the second week of January when the President's nominations are due by the Senate on January 15. During consideration by the Senate, the Judiciary Committee may solicit information on the qualifications of nominees from appropriate persons and agencies. Accordingly, the President may submit letters to the Committee regarding nominees in connection with an examination and possible additional hearings by the Committee. Through this tool, you may provide your comments on a nominee to the Committee. However, members of the public may submit their views to the Committee through the Clerk of the Senate. The U.S. Senate Committee on the Judiciary is responsible for considering the nomination of judicial officers to the federal courts. Accordingly, the Committee may establish rules relating to the qualifications of nominees to the courts. For example, the Committee may establish a timetable and/or a process by which the Committee receives information on nominees and may take testimony on the nominees, in addition to the President's recommendations on the nominees. The Committee may solicit information from the President or
